Miser's Body Mummified.

There has been an astounding sequel to the many mysteries surrounding the discovery on February 23, 1902, of the mummified body of the Paris miser, Narcisse Thibaut, in Paris. Thibaut suddenly vanished in December, 1901. Two months later the police awoke for the first time to the suspicion that there had been foul play. They broke open his room at 83 Rue des Boulangers, and found Thibaut's body reclining against a chest of drawers. To their astonishment it showed no signs of decomposition, and a medical examination revealed the fact that by some strange means it had become as completely mummified as those of the Pharaohs. Beyond the chest of drawers Thibaut's room contained little or no furniture, but a prodigious quantity of old cigar and confectionary boxes and a number of books. When amid these squalid surroundings a will was found bequeathing a large sum of money to "the Friends of Peace Society" the bequest was regarded as the fancy of a disordered mind. But certain odd clues to hidden wealth were found, and an investigation which has occupied two years has led to the discovery of £10,000 in French notes between the uncut pages of Milton's "Paradise Lost." Other sums in notes were found in other nooks or hidden behind the wall paper, which had been partly stripped off and skillfully fixed up again; in the backs of old pictures and in a score of other ingenious hiding places. A sum of nearly £60,000 has thus been discovered and will be handed over to the "Friends of Peace."

Japs Driving Russians.

According to advices from Seoul the Japanese are giving the Russians considerable trouble in northern Korea. The Russians claim that the losses of the Japanese were 10 times as great as theirs in the first military encounter in that section. According to the Russian reports the Japanese buried 59 dead soldiers, while 120 wounded were removed. On the other hand, a dispatch from Seoul says that the Russian cavalry in distress is retreating toward Wiju.

Brigadier General Allen, United States military observer with the Japanese army, has returned to Seoul from Pingyang. He says the roads in northern Korea are in a bad condition, and that the Russians have lost excellent opportunities to take advantage of the natural obstacles offered by the country to oppose the Japanese advance. General Allen believes that the Russians intend to make a stand at the Yalu.

Notwithstanding conflicting reports, it is plainly apparent that the Japanese have so far the advantage in the operations on land, although no engagement of a decisive character has been fought.

A dispatch from Tokio states that the Japanese after dislodging the Russians at Chengju, about 50 miles northwest of Pingyang, on March 28, rested for one day and then advanced to Yongchun, about 45 miles west of Chengju. After a brief engagement they drove the Russians farther north, the latter retreating toward Unsan, a town 80 miles northeast of Yongchun.

Bill for Relief.

Senator Martin has introduced a bill in the House for the relief of Louisa J. Grau. The bill provides that the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay her out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of $6,000. This amount is for damages and trespass committed by the soldiers of the engineer corps, under the order of Charles J. Allen, chief of the engineer corps, having charge of Sheridan Point, by cutting down a large quantity of shade trees, and also eighteen or twenty acres of forest, and for trespass for several years upon her farm fronting upon the Potomac river in Virginia, on Sheridan Point, near Fort Hunt, and also by setting fire to the said forest so cut, together with a large quantity of fencing surrounding the timber. The bill further sets forth the fact that the soldiers were for two or three years, at intervals, when surveying the farm, trespassing upon it without permission, until the owner became so much annoyed that she was obliged to leave the premises and abandon her home, and because of such annoyance was finally compelled to sell the farm at a sacrifice. Representative Rixey, as long ago as January 22, introduced a similar bill in the House.

A Great Satisfaction.

There was a big sensation in Leesville, Ind., when W. H. Brown, of that place, who was expected to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Similar cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis and Grip are numerous. It's the peerless remedy for all throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by E. S. Suicide of a Naval Officer.

Lieutenant Commander Edgar Townsend Warburton, chief engineer of the battleship Maine, now at Pensacola, committed suicide in his cabin on board that vessel yesterday. A bullet from a .38 caliber revolver was sent crashing through the brain and death resulted within 40 minutes afterwards. The executive officer of the ship was passing the door of Commander Warburton's cabin, when he was started by the report of a revolver within. The bullet, after passing through the brain, came through the door and struck the rail of the ship, barely missing the executive officer. The latter notified the other officers and the door of the Commander's cabin was pried open. He was lying on the floor in a pool of blood and the revolver was grasped in his right hand. No cause is known for the officer committing the act. He appeared to be in the best of health and spirits, and within a few weeks would have been assigned to shore duty. Many of the officers expressed the belief that death was the result of an accident, and that the Commander did not commit suicide.

The "Fattest Woman" Dies.

Mrs. Chauncey Morlan, known as the fattest woman in the world, died in New York on Wednesday from diabetes, in her room in Huber's museum. She had been exhibited at the museum with her husband. The couple weighed 912 pounds, Morlan tipping the scales at 492 pounds and his wife at 420 pounds. The couple were married in the room in which Mrs. Morlan died, ten years ago, by Rev. Dr. Shilling. They had been at the museum three weeks, and were to leave there to join the Barnum & Bailey show, but could not on account of Mrs. Morlan's illness. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Bee in Child's Ear.

Disregard of his mother's warning to keep away from a neighbor's beehive may cause 5-year-old James Kunkler, of Spring Mill, Pa., to lose his hearing and possibly his reason. His curiosity knew no bounds, and in striving to see what the bees were doing he was badly stung. A physician found a small bee deep in the child's ear, and an operation was performed to remove the insect. The child is in a serious condition.

How to Ward Off an Attack of Rheumatism.

"For years when spring time came on and I went into gardening, I was sure to have an attack of rheumatism and every attack was more severe than the preceding one," says Josie McDonald, of Man, Logan county, West Va. "I tried everything with no relief whatever, until I procured a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and the first application gave me ease, and before the first bottle was used I felt like a new person. Now I feel that I am cured, but I always keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the house, and when I feel any symptoms of a return I soon drive it away with one or two applications of this liniment.
